There comes a clear day when one realizes that clothes are to keep the weather off you, that food is to give you health, that home is shelter and inspiration; that, aside from being clean and inoffensive, one's personal appearance does not signify very much; that the main thing in life is to be going along toward the goal of your ideals. That isn't getting old, it's getting sense. From then on Time is not master, but friend.—Collier's.

ELGIN BUTTER SELLS AT TWENTY-EIGHT CENTS

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Elgin, July 31.—Fifty tubs sold at 28 cents.

NUMEROUS ASSEMBLY CANDIDATES ACTIVE

CONTESTS ARE PROMISED IN NEARLY EVERY IMPORTANT DISTRICT OF THE STATE.

EXPECT CLOSE FIGHTS

Next Session of Legislature Should Register Prominent and Influential Men—Some of Candidates Listed.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Madison, Wis., Aug. 3.—Judging from the spirited contests in all political parties in the senate and assembly districts of the state, the next session of the legislature will be one of the most interesting in the history of the state. Only in a few districts are nominees for office within their own party allowed to go unchallenged. Political managers view this as an indication that next session will have on its roll some of the prominent and influential men in the state.

In the second district of Sheboygan county R. B. Melvin is a progressive candidate for re-election, and Senator Biehler, a democrat, is a candidate for re-election for the state senate. In Waupaca county Fred H. Stalwart is a progressive republican candidate, and Matthew Scott is a progressive democratic candidate for the assembly. In the Outagamie county district Assemblyman G. B. Ballard of Appleton is a candidate for re-election. The senatorial candidate in that district are Anton Kukuk of Shawano, a progressive republican, and J. J. Walrich of Shawano, a conservative republican. In Winnebago county George Frohmader is a conservative republican candidate for the assembly. The progressive candidate in this district has not yet announced himself. In the second district of Jefferson county H. J. Grell of Johnson is a conservative republican candidate.

An interesting contest is being staged for the assembly in Sauk county. Former assemblyman George Carpenter of Baraboo is a progressive republican candidate opposed by assemblyman Robert Dickie of North Freedom, a conservative republican. George J. Gross of Menomonie is a progressive democratic candidate. Two candidates have announced themselves against assemblyman William Duffy of Bayfield county. They are A. N. Deviston of Bayfield and William Warden of Madison. The senatorial contest in the Ashland-Bayfield-Sawyer district is also spirited, with H. H. Peavey of Washburn, A. H. Wilkins of H. P. Puley in the field. In Jackson county assemblyman E. L. Van Gordon is a conservative republican candidate for the assembly. He is opposed by P. A. Henry, a progressive republican. Assemblyman Miller of Menomonie is again a candidate for the assembly, from the Dunn county district. He is opposed by Assemblyman Carl Pieper of R. Ross is the democratic candidate in this district. There are three candidates for the senate in this district, to succeed the late George E. Scott. They are A. C. Anderson, Frank Verce and Assemblyman Axel Johnson. The senatorial contest in the Eau Claire-Chippewa district will also be interesting, with Assemblyman John E. Olatie, Roy Edward F. Ackley, Chippewa Falls, testing for the honor. The assembly candidates in the Eau Claire district are Chris Saenger of Eau Claire, John Young and Edward J. Metzger. Metzger is the democratic candidate.

There are two progressive republican candidates for the assembly in the Dodge county district. E. J. Labuwi and C. F. Porter. The indications are that Assemblyman H. J. Kellogg of Ripon, a conservative democrat, and assemblyman John Ganser, in the Taylor county district, has opposition in the democratic ranks. For his assembly seat, in the person of John Ryan, Senator W. T. Stevens of Rhineland is the republican candidate for the state senate. In Vernon county Assemblyman H. M. Rantz is a progressive republican candidate, and Clarence H. Carter, a conservative republican. In Columbia county W. R. Bauman of Morrisville is the progressive republican candidate and Walter Smith is the democratic candidate. Assemblyman F. L. McGowan has opposition to his return to the assembly from Adams and Marquette counties. He is opposed by Allan Calhoun, the republican ticket. William J. Bell is the democratic candidate.

The Trempealeau county senatorial district, which includes Lake Crosee county, has an interesting fight between E. F. Clark, Galeville, and former Senator John C. Gavaney of Arcadia. Gavaney is a conservative republican. The candidates for the assembly from this district are Assemblyman John Hager of Whitehall, a progressive republican, and Dr. J. A. Palmer of Arcadia, democrat.

Henry Oppen Cunningham. The indications are that E. Standley of Deloit may enter the senatorial race as a progressive republican, against Senator L. C. Cunningham, a conservative republican. Candidates in Walworth county are Frank M. Higgins of Lake Geneva, a progressive republican, and R. S. Young, of Dodgeville, a conservative republican. In Rock county Speaker L. C. Whitet is a candidate for re-election. In the first district and A. J. Vinegar in the second, W. B. Naylor of Tonah is running for the assembly in Monroe county. In a progressive republican, and is opposed by Miles Sherman, a conservative republican. The assembly candidates in Clark county are William L. Smith, a conservative republican, and F. P. Amstrong, a progressive democrat. The progressive candidate for the assembly in this district is Charles Bradford. Senator R. V. Monk, who lives in this district, is a candidate for re-election to the state senate. In the second district of Jefferson county J. W. Porter is the conservative republican candidate, and W. Richardson is the democratic candidate. John T. Williams of Dodgeville is a progressive republican candidate for the assembly, opposing Assemblyman T. G. Cretney of Ridgeway, conservative republican. In Green county Assemblyman S. A. Schindler of New Glarus, a progressive republican, is unopposed. The reports indicate that John Chaple of Ashland is a republican candidate for the assembly from Ashland county.

No Dane County Conservatives. In Dane county no conservative republican senatorial candidate has entered the field. Senator H. A. Huber of Stoughton, a progressive republican, is a candidate for re-election. John T. Madison is the democratic senatorial candidate in that district. In the first district of Dane county the probable candidates are William T. Evis of Madison and Jos. H. Brown of Madison on the republican and Clyde Gallagher of Madison on the democratic side. In the second assembly district William Nelson of Deerfield, a conservative republican, is a candidate for re-election. He is opposed by James Hanson of Cambridge, and Cornelius Johnson of Burke, both progressive republicans. In the third district of Dane county A. H. Slope of Oregon is the progressive republican candidate and C. W. Deering of Verona is the conservative republican candidate. The democratic candidate in the third district is Assemblyman Thomas Stewart, who has already served several successive terms.

JANESVILLE FAIR PLANS COMPLETED

The day on a large stage which will be in front of the grandstand. On Wednesday morning hundreds of people are expected to be present to witness the championship baseball game between the Port Atkinson and Whitewater league teams for a purse of $200. These two nine are leaders in one of the minor state leagues and have a large number of fans. A special train will leave from Watertown on that day to accommodate the crowds. The train will leave Watertown at 8:35 a. m., leave Johnson's Creek at 8:55; at 9:17 Port Atkinson 9:35; Jefferson 9:43; Milton Junction 9:55, and arrive at Janesville at 10:10. The games will be called promptly at 10:30 o'clock.

Ringings Appropriate Space.

Some trouble has been experienced with the advertising matter on the fair which has been distributed throughout the county. A fair board made out the county fair board made out the use of their buildings to place posters. A number of days ago through the county agency went through the fair date over. For the last four days a man has been employed to replace the fair matter. No doubt some amount will be secured from the circus people. This evening the fair boosters will make a trip to Darlen and Delavan. The Bower City Band, Robert Daley, and M. O. Mount, speaker, will be taken along to furnish the music. The fair bulletin, a new feature of the fair, is taken along and distributed to the people. It contains valuable information regarding fair material. Thirty thousand of them were printed and when the booster runs are finished next Monday evening practically every person within a radius of thirty miles will have read one of the bulletins.

Arrangements have been made with Fred L. Clemens of the Jackman block to help Secretary Nowlan in the many articles that are coming in daily. Persons desiring to enter articles in the fair should send their entry blanks to the secretary, Nowlan or Mr. Clemens at the Jackman block.

Janesville Fair Management Explains Statement in Premium List Which Has Been Misunderstood.

The management of Janesville's big fair wishes to explain an article in the culinary department which seems to be misleading. The article is article No. 2, which reads: "Entries in this department are limited to residents of Rock county and each exhibitor is limited to ten entries." We wish to explain to the ladies of Rock county that we will allow ten entries in the baking department, ten in the canned goods department, ten in the spices and jellies and jams, and as many other articles not entered to make up the best display.

There has been an omission in the farm and garden products, which is the professional class. The entry number of this class will be 9874, class 502.

STAHLNECKER FREED OF SHOUDY'S CHARGE

LOCAL MAN DID NOT THREATEN TO SHOOT ROCKFORD REAL ESTATE AGENTS TO COLLECT MONEY.

NO THREATS TO SHOOT

Defendant's Witnesses' Testimony Breaks Down Stories Told by Plaintiff and Partner.

Robert L. Stahlnecker of this city was discharged by Acting Judge Charles E. Lange in municipal court yesterday afternoon on charges of threatening to shoot Israel Shoudy of Rockford, a real estate agent, with the intent to extort money. With the defendant in the case, and the release from custody of Stahlnecker, Shoudy created a scene in the court room. He was hostile and furiously offered to wage any amount that Stahlnecker would pay for his release. Fred L. Melville, had testified during the examination of the morning.

Nobody offered to take him up, however, and with Melville he caught an interurban car for Rockford where he will be defendant in a $10,000 trespass suit in the October term of the Winnebago county court, the complaint having been made by O. Henry, a prominent local attorney. Possibilities are that matters will be brought even a little more rough for Shoudy and that he will face another suit, this time for something like $13,500, and the plaintiff in the case, Shoudy, man who yesterday was declared not guilty of attempting to collect the money or threatening him in the effort.

Uses Character Witnesses.

After Rennie Hardendorff's testimony of Shoudy being the one who threatened the pistol, and threateningly pulled it at Stahlnecker. Instead of the latter menacing Shoudy with the gun, had been given to receive, almost instant substantiation from the lips of Mrs. Andrew Olson and had made a big breach in the story of the plaintiff. Attorney N. Nolan, sprung a surprise when he placed his character witnesses on the stand. Dr. T. W. Nuzum, Cash Whipple, superintendent of the county farm, Roy C. Whipple, his son, and Shoudy were those called.

Admits Men Tricked.

Stahlnecker was the last to take the stand. He admitted he deceived the men to Janesville, but explained this away by telling of his many untruthful efforts to make a settlement with the real estate agent. He admitted that he had bought the one hundred sixty acre tract in the Rio Grande valley from them.

Stahlnecker said they offered him security on a Belleville, Dane county farm. At this suggestion he said he was angry because he had already had the title of the farm looked up, only to have the abstractor advise him to have nothing to do with the property. This was prompted, he said, by the fact that the register of deeds records showed it first in the name of Belle Shoudy, the plaintiff's wife, for a short time, then in another name and then back to Mrs. Shoudy, and the time Stahlnecker was investigated, it being in the name of a man named Burpee.

Offer Poor Security.

He didn't want the Belleville farm security, but wanted security on a farm, owned by Melville, Shoudy's friend and partner. Stahlnecker scoffed at the idea that he had consumed within half a pint of two quarts of whiskey while the men were at the house and testified that he had drunk three quarts of whiskey in a period of over four months.

The state's prosecutor could not get Stahlnecker mixed up in his story to any extent, the man retreating if almost every word of the case examination as he had previously confessed and as he had related it in an interview to the Gazette a week ago today.

Finishing with Stahlnecker.

Finishing with Stahlnecker, both Attorney Nolan and the district attorney rested their case.

Shoudy Wilts.

Mr. Nolan took the floor and under his plea Shoudy fairly wilted. The courtroom was anything but cool during the afternoon, but Shoudy's temperature was considerable degrees higher than that of a normal man. With the reference Stahlnecker's counsel made to his previous transactions of alleged shady nature. He attacked the well built up stories of the case and compared it to previous business deals of theirs. It was a repetition of his tactics of the morning when Shoudy's appearance as first witness opened the examination high temperature.

At that time Mr. Nolan asked:

"You ever been convicted on any charge before?"

"No."

The attorney paused, it seemed, expecting something to "break" if furnished with a pile of papers before him.

Shoudy, angry, his eyes blazing, shouted: "No! I never was convicted on a thing and I never paid a fine. That's all right, Shoudy. I didn't ask you this question because I didn't want you to tell a lie."

Dunwiddie Sees Blackmail.

The district attorney had his inning next. He charged Mr. Nolan's reference to Stahlnecker's method of securing his money was nothing else than blackmail and claimed that the gun on the table in Stahlnecker's home was there for some particular purpose; either there for some play or for business. He held out that Shoudy and Melville would not have fed him through windows unless Stahlnecker had the gun. For the life of him he could not get sure that Shoudy would remove his Masonic pin or button unless Stahlnecker had something aside from his own personality and character to back him up.

Acting Judge Lange looked sternly, however, and discharged Stahlnecker.

MILWAUKEE COUNTY
SUBJECT OF WORK OF
ARCHEOLOGIST BODYLatest Publication of State Society
Deals With Early History of City's Site.

(By Associated Press.)

Madison, Wis., Aug. 3.—The latest publication of the Wisconsin Archeological society, which will be issued within a few days, is devoted to a description of the early Indian history and earthworks of Milwaukee county, a part of the state considered by archeologists formerly to have been one of the richest fields in that section of Wisconsin.

In this work, it is shown that the last of present occupied by the city of Milwaukee, was once the seat of a numerous Indian population. Aboriginal camps, villages, cemeteries and planting grounds were situated in many places along the banks of the three rivers passing through the city—the Milwaukee, Menomonee and Kinnickinnic. There were thirty-three of these groups but all but a small number of these interesting records have now been effaced by the city's growth. Of the total number of two hundred and seventeen of these ancient monuments located in the county, one hundred and forty-seven were round or oval in form; fourteen were linear or wall shaped and forty-six, effigy or animal-shaped earthworks. Ten were enclosures of circular or oval forms.

Of the oval and conical earthworks, nearly all appear to have been erected for mortuary purposes. Numerous human skeletons were exhumed from them. The largest number of these mounds in any one group, was fifty. These burial mounds were from fifteen to forty feet in diameter and from one to ten feet in height. The majority of the animal-shaped earthworks were thought to have been intended by their builders to represent that powerful denizen of the forests. Other effigies were constructed to represent birds and one a turtle.

One of the largest panther mounds measured two hundred and twelve feet from its head to the tip of its tail.

Milwaukee is one of the few localities in Wisconsin where intaglio of figures were found. These remarkable animal-shaped figures were excavated out of the soil instead of built upon it. Five of these were found in Milwaukee.

Of the large number of Indian stone and metal implements found on former sites at Milwaukee, many are preserved in the local public museum and other private collections.

Connecting the Indian sites at Milwaukee with those of surrounding country were deeply work trails which in pioneer days became known as the Chicago, Green Bay, Fond du Lac, Sauk, Waukesha and Mukwonago trails.

Among other recent publications of the Archeological society are a number of illustrated pamphlets descriptive of Indian history and monuments of western, northwestern, northern and northeastern Wisconsin. Others describe the interesting antiquities of the Lake-Koshkonong region, Lac Courte Oreilles, the Door county islands, the Madison lakes, the Baraboo valley and the lake and river regions of Racine, Manitowish, Waukesha, Winnebago, Sauk, Rock, Fond du Lac, Outagamie, Wood, Portage and Sheboygan counties.

SUMMER GARDENERS
HAVE PICNIC TODAYSeventy Two Boys and Girls of the School Garden Class Enjoy Outing
At Lauderdale Lake

Seventy-two members of the summer garden class started out this morning on a picnic which was held at Lauderdale lake. Twenty cars provided by the civic committee of the Janesville Commercial club carried the gardeners to the picnic grounds. Before going to Lauderdale a stop was made at Milton Jct. where the gardens of Prof. A. B. West were inspected. From there they went to Lauderdale and visited the truck gardens of Robert Brown and then continued on the trip to the lake.

At Lauderdale the happy gardeners enjoyed an outing. Games were staged, under the direction of J. J. Center, boys secretary at the Young Men's Christian Association and Carroll West of Milton Jct. Volley ball, indoor baseball, codge ball and other games furnished the amusement of the day. Swimming was also enjoyed by many of them. At the noon hour a basket lunch was served. Everyone taking the trip thoroughly enjoyed the day and appreciated very much the kindness of the efforts of the Commercial club committee and the auto owners donating their cars for the day.

The following boys and girls were listed in the garden contest: David Atwood, Alma Badger, Earl Badger, Raymond Badger, Paul Elaf, Albert Bennison, Lawrence Bennison, Ruth Barrett, Donald Blackie, Lovell Blackie, Gertrude Buggs, Harold Buggs, Paul Claxton, George Buggs, Robert Corrado, Frank Costello, Francis Crowley, Thomas Cunningham, Grace Dobson, William Dobson, Katherine Dalton, George Dally, Nancy Delilly, Joe Dekeyer, James Doud, William Doud, Bonita Edwards, Wilhelm Edwards, Charles Fisher, Harold Florin, George Francis, Charles Goker, Gerald Goker, Walter Graf, Rowland Gridley, Ronald Smith, Clarence Hager, Percy Hall, Lloyd Henry, Ferris Hitchcock, Harry Ketter, Walton Lane, Ivan Lloyd, Francis McArthur, William Mc Donald, Katherine Madden, Charles Meyer, Lloyd Morris, Frank McDougal, Edward Paul, Archie Perry, Archie Pierson, Bernard Pfenning, Albert Pfenning, Dorothy Randall, Louis Schaber, Stewart Seoble, James Seoble, Charles Skelly, Raymond Smith, Ernest Sumpe, Bernard Snider, Leo Sullivan, Elmer Schultz, Arthur Schultz, Henry Tall, Raymond Wood.

Berlin, Aug. 3.—Today it is up to the soldier's wife to see that the available food is cooked so it can be eaten. Germany's landsturm women fight at home against the blacked-out while the landsturm man attacks the enemy at the front.

A German hausfrau can't go to the shops for market now and get what she wants. She can't even get a cent of some things she needs. She can buy only one-half pound of meat a week for each person. If she gets a pork she grinds it up fine and mixes it with bread crumbs. This last she roasts. One-third of this she serves for one meal. Next day she does without meat. The third day she serves out meat. The fourth day she has fish and the fifth day she boils what is left of the meat with milk and has creamed meat on toast.

Potatoes are scarce, but with more bread and incoming spring vegetables the cook makes some kind of a new dish.

The world probably never has seen such resourcefulness displayed by organized society as is evidenced in Berlin today. Women who could no longer obtain enough flour for baking cakes discovered that a very good cake could be made by grating up carrots with the white of two eggs and sugar. The government is now selling soup cubes made of wheat and fat for one cent each, which makes three cups of good soup. Asparagus has taken the place of potatoes at many meals.

Everyone in Berlin today eats by cards from the porter. These cards include bread, butter, meat, milk, rice and potato cards. Every time the hausfrau goes to market she must take her cards along. Meat and butter are now regulated so she can buy them without standing for several hours in line.

One cake of soap per month per person is the regulated quantity.

Yet the landsturm frau and her family make the best of it and keep not only alive but in good health.

HOTEL MEN FAVOR STATE REGULATION

Prominent Milwaukee Landlord Urges State Health Inspection of Hotel Employees.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
MADISON, Aug. 3.—Health supervision of hotel employees as the means of guarding the health of guests, and the utmost co-operation with the hotel institution, forces of the state, were strongly recommended by the Wisconsin Hotel Association, in an address before the hotel officers of Wisconsin this morning.

Mr. Smith spoke from the point of view of a practical hotel man. Hotel men regulation and inspection of hotels and hotel employees, he said, has been endorsed by the National Congress of the American Hotel Association.

"A law of this character is desired by many of the hotel men," Smith declared, "and also by many employees who have employees handling food stuffs. I personally, would like to see this law passed, and I would also suggest that Turkish baths be added to list of places that would come under a law of this character."

Rubland, Milwaukee's health commissioner, has the question of the examination of hotel employees of Milwaukee before the common council.

Milton Benedict interceded in Case-ment's behalf, endeavoring to obtain grace for him from the British government, influential Irish Nationalists having urged upon the Pontiff that the prisoner was not a traitor but was inspired by Irish patriotism.

Roger Casement, prior to the war, established a reputation through his investigation of the Congo and South American rubber atrocities committed on natives by Belgian and British rubber hunters. The then Sir Roger headed a commission of inquiry, which brought about reforms in the Congo.

He became actively identified with the organization of the Irish national volunteers. He was in the United States when the war began and addressed an open letter to the Irish press advising Irishmen to remain neutral.

In October 1914 he went to Norway and thence to Berlin, whence came the news that the tropical sun had unbalanced him mentally. Casement was given a reprieve, but his country looked upon him as high treason. His friends, recalling his years of service in Africa and South America, claimed for him that the tropical sun had unbalanced him mentally. Casement was born on September 1, 1864.

DOINGS OF THE VAN LOONS—It Looks as if Father Will Have to Stick to the Ladies—

BY F. LEIPZIGER

The AUCTION BLOCK

By REX BEACH

Here we have the tale of a young woman who is thrust by her greedy and lazy family into a world of human vultures to win a fortune with her personal charms. But she surprises them all with her fine traits of character. Her struggles and constant danger are frightening, but she brings help and happiness to men and women who need it much. This is a story with strong pulse.

CHAPTER I.

Peter Knight swung himself into the decrepit armchair beside the center table and growled:

"Isn't that just my luck? And me a Democrat for twenty years. There's nothing in politics, Jimmy."

His son James smiled crookedly, with a languid tolerance bespeaking amusement and contempt.

"Politics is all right, provided you're a good picker," he said, with all the assurance of twenty-two, "but you fell off the wrong side of the fence, and you're sore. These country towns always go in for the reform stuff every so often. If you'd listen to me—"

His father interrupted harshly: "Now, cut that out. I don't want to go to New York, and I won't." Peter Knight tried to look forceful, but the expression did not fit his weak, complacent features. When he had succeeded in fixing a look of determination upon his countenance the result was an artificial scowl and a palpably false pout. Wearing such a front, he continued: "When I say 'no' I mean it, and the subject is closed. I like Vale, I know everybody here, and everybody knows me."

"That's why it's time to move," said Jim, with another unpleasant curl of his lip. "As long as they didn't know you got past. But you'll never hold another office."

"Indeed! My record's open to inspection. I made the best sheriff in—"

"Two years. Don't kid yourself, pa. You got into the mud, but you didn't go deep enough to find the frogs. Fogarty got his, didn't he?"

Mr. Knight breathed deep with indignation.

"Senator Fogarty is my good friend. I won't let you question his honor, although you do presume to question mine."

"Of course he's your friend; that's why he's fixed you for this New York job."

"Department of water supply, gas and electricity," sneered Peter. "It sounds good, but the salary is fifteen hundred a year. A clerk—at my age!"

"Say, d'you suppose Tammany men live on their salaries?" Jimmie inquired.

"Wake up! This is your chance to horn into the real herd. In New York politics is a vacation; up here it's a vacation—everybody tries it once, like music lessons. If you'd been hooked up with Tammany instead of the state machine you'd have been taken care of."

At this juncture Mrs. Knight, having finished the supper dishes and set her bread to rise, entered the shabby parlor. Jim turned to her, shrugging his shoulders with an air of yawning his hands of a disagreeable subject. "Pa's weakened again," he explained. "He won't go."

"Me, a clerk—at my age!" mumbled Peter.

His wife spoke with brief conclusiveness.

"I wrote and thanked Senator Fogarty for his offer and told him you'd accept."

"You—what?" Peter was dumfounded.

"Yes."—Mrs. Knight seemed oblivious of his wrath—"we're going to make a change."

Mrs. Knight was a large woman well advanced beyond that indefinite turning point of middle age; in her unattractive face was none of the easy good nature so unmistakably stamped upon her husband's. Peter J., under easy living had grayed and fattened; what had once been a measure of good looks was hidden now behind a flabby, indefinite mediocrity, which, an unusual carefulness in dress could not disguise. His wife was of a totally different stamp, showing evidence of unusual force. Her thin lips, her clean-cut nose betokened purpose; a pair of alert, unpleasant eyes spoke of a mental activity that was entirely lacking in her mate, and she was generally recognized as the source of what little prominence he had attained.

"Yes, we're going to make a change," she repeated. "I'm glad, too, for I'm tired of housework."

"You don't have to do your own work. There's Lorelei to help."

"She's too pretty," said the mother. "You don't realize it; none of us do, but—she's beautiful. Where she gets her good looks from I don't know."

"What's the difference? It won't hurt her to wash dishes. She wouldn't have to keep it up forever, anyhow; she can have any follow in the county."

Mrs. Knight began slowly, mustily: "You need some plain talk Peter. I don't often tell you just what I think, but I'm going to now. You're past fifty; you've spent twenty years puttering around at politics, and what have you got to show for it? Nothing. The reformers are in at last, and you're out for good. You had your chance and you missed it. You're little, Peter; you know it, and so does the party."

The object of this address swelled pompously; his cheeks deepened in hue and distended; but while he was summing words for a defense his wife ran on evenly.

"The party used you just as long as you could deliver something, but you're down and out now, and they've thrown you over. Fogarty offers to pay his debt, and I'm not going to refuse his help."

"I suppose you think you could have done better if you'd been in my place," Peter growled. He was angry, yet the undeniable truth of his wife's words struck home. "That's the woman of it. You kick because we're poor, and then want me to take a fifteen-hundred-dollar job."

town full of them."

"If it's full of pretty women, what chance has she got?" queried Peter. "She can't break into society on my fifteen hundred."

"She won't need to. She can go on the stage."

"Good Lord! What makes you think she can act?"

"Do you remember that Miss Donald who stopped at Myrtle Lodge last summer? She's an actress."

"No!" Mr. Knight was amazed. "She told me a good deal about the show business. She said Lorelei wouldn't have the least bit of trouble getting a position. She gave me a note to a manager, too, and I sent him Lorelei's photograph. He wrote right back that he'd give her a place."

"Really?"

"Yes; he's looking for pretty girls with good figures. His name is Bergman."

Jim broke in eagerly. "You've heard of Bergman's Revues, pa. We saw one last summer, remember? Bergman's a big fellow."

"That show? Why, that was—rotten. It isn't a very decent life, either."

"Don't worry about sis," advised Jim. "She can take care of herself, and she'll grab a millionaire sure—" with her looks. Other girls are doing it every day—why not her? Ma's got the right idea."

Impressively Mrs. Knight resumed her argument. "New York is where the money is—and the women that go with money. It's the market place. The stage advertises a pretty girl and gives her chances to meet rich men. Here in Vale there's nobody with money, and besides, people know us."

The Stevens girls have been nasty to Lorelei all winter, and she's never invited to the golf-club dances any more."

At this intelligence Mr. Knight burst forth indignantly:

"They're putting on a lot of airs since the interurban went through; but Ben Stevens forgets who helped him get the franchise. I could tell a lot of things—"

"Bergman writes," continued Mrs. Knight, "that Lorelei wouldn't have to go on the road as all it she didn't care to. The real pretty show-girls stay right in New York."

Jim added another word. "She's the best asset we've got, pa, and if we all work together we'll land her in the money, sure."

Peter Knight pinched his full, red lips into a pucker and stared speculatively at his wife. It was not often that she openly showed her hand to him.

"Have you talked to her about it?"

"A little. She'll do anything we ask. She's a good girl that way."

The three were still buried in discussion when Lorelei appeared at the door.

"I'm going over to Mabel's," she paused a moment to say. "I'll be back early, mother."

In Peter Knight's eyes, as he gazed at his daughter, there was something akin to shame; but Jim evinced only a hard, calculating appraisal. Both men towardly acknowledged that the mother had spoken less than half the truth, for the girl was extravagantly, bewitchingly attractive. Her face and form would have been noticeable anywhere and under any circumstances; but now, in contrast with the unmodulated homeliness of her parents and brother her comeliness was almost startling. The others seemed to harmonize with their drab surroundings, with the dull, unattractive house and its furnishings, but Lorelei was in violent opposition to everything about her. She wore her beauty unconsciously, too, as a princess wears the purple of her rank. Neither in speech nor in look did she show a trace of her father's fatuous commonplaceness, and she gave no sign of her mother's coldly calculating disposition. Equally the girl differed from her brother, for Jim was anemic, underdeveloped, scrawny; his only mark of distinction being his bright and impudent eye, while she was full-blooded, healthy and clean. Splendidly distinctive, from her crown of warm amber hair to her shapely, slender feet, it seemed that all the hopes, all the aspirations, all the longings of bygone generations of Knights had flowered in her. As muddy waters purify themselves in running, so had the Knight blood, coming through unpleasant channels, finally clarified and sweetened itself in this girl.

In the doorway she hesitated an instant, favoring the group with her shadowy, impersonal smile. In her gaze there was a faint inquiry, for it was plain that she had interrupted a serious discussion. She came forward and rested a hand upon her father's thin, balding head. Peter reached up and took it in his own moist palm.

The Thirty-nine Steps

The three faces seemed to change before my eyes and reveal their secrets. The young one was the murderer. Now I saw cruelty and ruthlessness in a pistol.

"Schneil, Franz!" cried a voice. "Schneil!" As it spoke I heard two of my fellows emerge on the moonlit lawn.

The young, dark man leaped for the window, was through it and over the low fence before a hand could touch him. I grappled the old chap, and the room seemed to fill with figures.

I saw the plump one collared, but my eyes were all for the out of doors, where Franz sped on over the road toward the railed entrance to the beach stairs. One man followed him, but he had no chance.

The gate locked behind the fugitive, and I stood staring with my hands on the old boy's throat for such a time as a man might take to descend these steps to the sea.

Suddenly my prisoner broke from me and lunged himself on the wall. There was a click as if a lever had been pulled. Then came a low rumbling far, far below the ground, and through the window I saw a cloud of chalky dust pouring out of the shaft of the stairway.

Some one switched on the light.

The old man was looking at me with blazing eyes.

"He is safe!" he cried. "You cannot follow in time. He is gone. He has triumphed! Es lebe hoch der Schwarze Stein!"

There was more in those eyes than any common triumph. They had been hooded like a bird of prey, and now they flamed with a hawk's pride.

A white, fanatic heat burned in them, and I realized for the first time the terrible thing I had been put up against. This man was more than a spy; in his foul way he had been a patriot.

As the handcuffs clanked on his wrists I said my last word to him:

"I hope Franz will bear his triumph well. I ought to tell you that the Academie for the last hour has been in our hands."

Three weeks later, as all the world knows, we went to war. I joined the new army the first week and, owing to my Matabele experience, got a captain's commission straight off. But I had done my best service, I think, before I put on khaki.

Elizabeth started to the door and then, thinking better of it, said, "O, no, that's the way Little Red Riding Hood was fooled."—Exchange.

Dinner Stories

The dinner was very bad. Another new cook, eh?" said Mr. Dawson. "It is strange what a time we have with cooks. The Dixons have no such trouble. Dixon was telling me only yesterday that they have had the same cook for ten years."

"Yes, dear," said Mrs. Dawson sweetly, "and did he tell you who she is?"

"No. Who is she?"

"His wife."

The accused was a beautiful woman. Under the circumstances her examination was purely a matter of form, still legal formalities had to be observed.

"I understand," said the detective, "that during the absence of your husband you shot a burglar?"

"I did," the beautiful lady admitted.

"What became of him?"

"Why, the other burglar took him away."

"Which other burglar?"

"The one I shot at."

Ethel was going to a party at a neighbor's house where she had already caught tantalizing glimpses of unlimited quantities of cake, fruit and ices. At the last, mother inconsiderately held her back for final instructions.

"Now, remember, darling, to say, 'Yes, please,' and 'No, thank you.'"

"Oh, yes, mother," Ethel said, "I shall always say 'Yes, please,' but I don't think I shall have to say 'No, thank you.'"

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Daily Gazette, Thursday, Aug. 3, 1876.—There is a centennial in this city. There won't be many more visitors from this city until September or October.

Sheriff Fisher, who went to White-water yesterday to look after some parties on charges of committing burglary, reports that they are not the guilty persons; at least this is the general supposition.

Mrs. S. Hutchinson and R. Shepard left for Europe yesterday to be absent about three months. Mr. Shepard was in England, Ireland, France, Germany and several other countries on the continent before his return.

The contract for the postoffice has been let to Shearer, rather than Co. The contractors agree to finish the building by the fifteenth of October.

ber, ready for the furniture. It will have a fifty foot front and will be fifty-four and one-half feet deep and two stories high. The front will be a model of architectural beauty, if the plans which are already drawn are any criterion. Work will be commenced immediately.

Yesterday afternoon a laborer engaged on the foundation of Phil Car-gared on West Milwaukee street, met with the misfortune of having his eyes filled with mortar. As soon as possible he was taken to Dr. Whiting's office, suffering intense pain. The doctor found the white globes of the eyes filled with mortar, and also that the membranes of the eyelids were eaten off. The eyes were carefully cleaned and the man relieved from his suffering.

THIS BOY MISSED POVERTY STRICKEN LIFE BY 61 MINUTES
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]
Spokane, Wash., Aug. 3.—It came to light today that because he was born an hour before midnight of April 30, a tiny, red-checked Indian boy who lives on the Colville reservation, about 100 miles west of Spokane, will receive 160 acres of land from the government.

When President Wilson signed the proclamation recently throwing open to settlement by homesteaders the Colville reservation, he did not know how close he came to making the Indian Joseph a poor boy. The proclamation opening to settlement approximately 350,000 acres of land on the reservation reserved a quarter section for each Indian child born before May 1. Accordingly, the Indian baby who arrived at 11 o'clock on the evening of April 30 is richer by 160 acres than he would have been had his arrival been delayed 61 minutes.

PAY DAY OF NEW YORK MILITIAMEN ON THE BORDER TODAY
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

McAllen, Texas, Aug. 3.—This is scheduled to be the first pay day for New York militia troops on border protection duty for Uncle Sam. They will receive pay only for the days they have served the federal government, not for the time they spent waiting regular army officers in armories at home, for which the state must pay. Hundreds of the guardsmen asked that the government send their pay direct to their families, where cash is most needed. The government declined to do this saying it was impossible under army rules. The men will have to wait until their money gets here, then reforward it to New York.

QUITE A TASK.
